About the Award

The first Robert W. Reilly Leadership Award was awarded in 1998 to recognize an individual who best exemplifies the leadership qualities of Robert W. Reilly, a leader of the plasma therapeutics industry association. As Executive Director and President of ABRA (now PPTA Source), 1978 to 1992, and President of the International Plasma Products Industry Association (now PPTA) until 1998, Mr. Reilly played a significant role in the development and acceptance of industry voluntary standards for quality plasma programs and was a leader in advancing relationships and open communication with regulatory authorities and consumer groups. In addition, he developed the first education programs and industry symposia focusing on challenges in the plasma collection facility and fractionation and plasma therapeutics issues worldwide.

PPTA is seeking nominations for the annual PPTA Robert W. Reilly Leadership Award. The award recognizes individuals who, through their commitment and leadership, have had a positive influence on the plasma protein therapeutics industry. We encourage you to nominate an individual who best exemplifies the criteria below.

NOMINATION CRITERIA

The nominated individual should be one who has had a positive influence on the industry and who has demonstrated unquestionable professional character, ethics and commitment to the advancement of the plasma protein therapeutics industry and commitment to the goal of improving access for patients to these lifesaving therapies.

The nominated individual may be an active or retired industry member, consumer representative, scientist or regulatory authority.

SUBMISSIONS

Any industry member may nominate an individual to receive the award. Please submit nominations via email to Cathy Izzi (cizzi@pptglobal.org) or fax (410.263.2298) with the following information:
